Unsung heroes of the airplane carrier Franklin's rescue were Capt. John Gingrich, skipper of the cruiser Pittsburgh, and his executive officer, Ed Rivers. Capt. Leslie Gehres of the Franklin expressed astonishment that the Pittsburgh kept its towline on the burning airplane carrier with Jap suicides hitting at both. . . . The answer is that for over 37 hours, Gingrich remained on the bridge, with Rivers assigned to the fantail to watch the towline. Neither had a moment's sleep during those 37 hours.

of which was held yesterday. Manager Porter Kimball stated that if the attendance justified, other special matinees would follow. The playground will be open as usual on these days for children not attending the matinees.

The Campbell soldier recently arrived at the Army Ground and Service Forces Redistribution Station, and is due for his military discharge shortly. No combat neophyte, he fought on Saipan prior to Iwo Jima, and that "was no walkaway."

Prior to entering the Army, MacMurdo was employed as a marine fireman, but passed up maritime service because he "wanted something to shoot back with."

Sunday afternoon, July 22, a reception will be held for Rev. and Mrs. Lawrence Osborne at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Lyold, Hamilton avenue, between the hours of 4 and 6 o'clock. All the members and friends of the church are invited to attend.

A joint gathering with the ladies of the auxiliary was voted for the July 25 meeting. A pot luck dinner will feature the affair. At this time the boys selected for Boys State will be feted and their parents will be honor guests. Boys State was called off this year by the ODT due to travel conditions where more than fifty persons are involved. In lieu of their trip to the state capitol and participation in official government affairs these boys will be accorded some local recognition to offset their disappointment.

Following the example of some other posts in the state, it was voted to request a lowering of present price demands on veterans' home loans. It was felt the state figure now means a too-high level for most service men to meet, and something more within the reach of the majority was hoped for.

Inasmuch as the annual state convention must of necessity be cancelled, the 26 districts throughout the state will hold meetings and election of state officials at the special meeting called for Sunday, July 22. The local groups comprising three counties will meet in San Jose, and delegates named for Campbell Post were Comrades Mitchell, Bohnett, Fuller and Fortaine, with alternates being Gus Robillard, Ray Wood and Henry Jensen.

HELP FOR THE HARVEST

California farmers this year face the toughest harvest season of the war—a season in which they will need volunteer workers as never before. Confronted with the worst manpower shortage in the history of their industry, they must still outstrip all previous production records to feed the rapidly growing army in the Pacific and to meet abnormally high quotas for the home front, for lend-lease and starving millions in Europe and Asia.

Since the war first began, California, as the No. 1 Farm State in the Union, has played a major part in the critically important Food for Victory Campaign, surpassing all production peaks of former years despite seemingly insuperable problems. Closest to the battle lines, with millions of additional troops being shifted to the Pacific, this State is now asked to break its own records in production, so that the Nation's supply lines for the armed forces will be as short as possible and the strain on the country's transportation system will be lightened.

During 1944, the Women's Land Army did a splendid job in California harvest fields. Women farm volunteers and regular seasonal workers filled more than 70,000 farm jobs. City volunteers—men, women and youngsters—accounted for 18,985 jobs, and regular seasonal workers from smaller towns in agricultural areas filled 52,246 farm jobs.

That patriotic achievement not only needs to be duplicated this year; it must be surpassed, for more farm boys have entered the armed forces, fewer Mexican farm workers are available—and the need for stepped up-food production is daily becoming more urgent. If you have a vacation coming, give it to Uncle Sam; help out in the harvest, not just for the dollars you'll earn, but because more food will shorten the war and save the lives of countless American fighting men.

GUARDIAN OF THE PEACE

The United States, when this war ends, will have a Navy far greater, both in number of ships and fire power, than all the rest of the navies of the world combined. We have 23 first class battleships and 67 cruisers now, with more building, and more aircraft carriers than all other Nations put together, friends, foes and neutrals.

Britain, once the mistress of the seas, will not have one-fourth our maritime strength. Russia's naval strength is negligible. And Japan's fighting ships, when the war finally ends, will have been largely destroyed. In air power—both in planes in service, and in potential production—the story is the same, with this Nation holding the balance of power.

For the Peace of the world, at least for some years to come, that augurs well, for this country never will be an aggressor Nation—and its military might can give force and potency to any international alliance designed to maintain the peace and deal with countries which might otherwise be inclined to violate it. Every right-thinking person will hope and pray that the United Nations Charter may become the cornerstone of a framework for lasting peace between all peoples. But we can be very glad, too, that until it has been tested and established, the preponderant military strength of the world will be in the hands of the least warlike of all Nations.

Mystery Play In San Jose Aug. 5

"Carmen Jones," the Billy Rose super-show which has a matinee and evening performance in San Jose on Sunday, July 29, "rates all of the handsome adjectives" bestowed on it, the New York Daily News declaring, "It is superb; it is enchanting; it is musically exciting and visually stirring." In the Oscar Hammerstein II version of Bizet's "Carmen," the locale is not Spain, but the United States. Carmen is not a cigarette girl, but a worker in an airplane factory—but just as faithless, just as seductive and reckless as the original. She persuades her Don Jose, a corporal in the U. S. Army in "Carmen Jones," to desert the army, and then she forsakes him for her toreador, who has become a prize fighter in the Hammerstein libretto. Not a note of the music is changed. An augmented orchestra is conducted by David Mordecai.

"TEN LITTLE INDIANS"

In delightful and amusing contrast, San Jose's next stage attraction is the Agatha Christie mystery thriller, "Ten Little Indians," which

NO SUBSTITUTE FOR FREEDOM

Day by day our rationing and price control system grows more taut. This situation brings us face to face with an issue which involves liberty itself. Will we turn back to the American system of a free economy at the earliest possible moment, or will we go further with controls that may decide for every individual what he must produce, buy or sell? If we accept the latter doctrine, we should not kick at restrictions and shortages. If we accept the former doctrine, we should not kick at higher or lower prices based on true costs and a competitive market. We can't expect a free and easy American life with the risks it involves and the opportunities it offers, under a controlled economy.

A growing number of economists favor an early release of price controls. If some industries charge excessive prices, many new competitors will be attracted into those fields and a torrent of production will eventually cure higher prices. Breakdown in price controls on reconversion products is feared by some who have studied the staggering task, as special postwar industrial situations that must await investigation may run into hundreds of thousands and small companies cannot survive long waiting periods.

The greatest safeguards the United States has against inflation are its manufacturers who produce on a low-cost basis, and its system of mass retail selling which distributes at a low unit-profit. That system, which before the war gave our nation the greatest customer service in the world, cannot exist by raising prices arbitrarily. Its salvation depends on low prices. It cannot operate on a basis of scarcity and restricted distribution. It operates on the philosophy of plenty. Such a system is a check on price gougers.

Not since "The Bat" has the coast had a first-class top-notch New York cast in a "Who-dun-it," and from the capacity audiences in San Francisco, it is thoroughly enjoying the "Indians." The story, with the title from the nursery rhyme of "Ten Little Indians . . . and then there were none," tells of how there are ten people on an island off the coast of Devon, and how all but two are mysteriously and most thrillingly liquidated. Suspense and brilliancy in plot and staging with an all-star Broadway cast make "Ten Little Indians" joyous entertainment.

THE BOOK MARK

by marty

"Great Tales of Terror and The Supernatural" edited by Herbert A. Wise and Phyllis Fraser.

Mystery fans, here is a find. Random House, the publishers, has been so brash as to say that this is the most complete and hair-raising collection of ghost stories and tales of terror that has ever been assembled in the world. It is a bumper volume of fifty-two complete stories, each a masterpiece in its particular way.

The eternal Poe appears with more than one of his famous tales of horror. There is his "The Black Cat" as well as "The Facts in the Case of M. Valdemar." Dorothy L. Sayers' "Suspicion" is also on the list of terror tales.

In the "Supernatural" department we have stories by distinguished authors such as Guy de Maupassant with his "The Horla" and "Was It A Dream?"; O. Henry's "The Furnished Room"; Rudyard Kipling's "They" and "The Return of Imray" and Saki's (H. H. Munro) "The Open Window." This does not begin to give you the complete index, but weakly suggests the power of interest imbedded within the binding of this volume.

The introduction to the book is significant in that it traces the origin of the tale of terror and the supernatural from the time of the beginning of man. It states that the real birth of the horror story, as we think of it today, took place in 1764. In that year Horace Walpole, an esthetic, witty English nobleman, published his novel "The Castle of Otranto." Since this publication there have sprung stories full of horror, terror and witchcraft. The tales of pure terror, of course, are completely naturalistic in their content, and must stand or fall by their merit alone. But what about the supernatural stories? Can we, the children of a scientific age, give any credence to these medleys of devils, ghosts, and other physical invasions? We can and do. We are dealing with stories, not with scientific dissertations. And if, as stories, they have the ring of truth, we'll believe them, as stories, implicitly.

Whether you are a lover of the mystery story or the tale of the supernatural, one or the other variety that appears in this book will not fail to meet with your highest story standards. This book is one to salt away for a rainy day. Its piquancy tempts one if it is within arm's reach.

MEN AND WOMEN OF CAMPBELL!

The harvest is beginning to pour into canneries. You will soon be urgently needed to help can food for our fighting men in the Pacific. Sign up for cannery work this summer!

Here are the facts:

Our men in the Pacific must have canned food to live and fight on. Canned food can be depended on to stand the hardships of transportation and extremes of climate out there. More than a billion cans are needed!

The canneries in this area are short of workers, but the crops must be packed when ripe or lost forever. Once more, patriotic men and women are asked to pitch in and help do this vital war job.

Cannery work isn't exactly a picnic, but it is something any average person can do. If you're a woman, you'll find a cannery is something like a big kitchen. Your work will consist of preparing fruits or vegetables and putting them in cans. You'll get tired at first, but you'll find the work exciting and different.

And think what you'll be doing for the men who will open those cans out on some barren Pacific Island!

If you're a man, your work will consist of filling and handling cases, operating hand or electric trucks, or machinery.

Both women and men are paid regular high cannery wages.

Free 20-page booklet gives all the facts about cannery work. Get a copy at the United States Employment Service or any cannery. Sign up now. You will be called when needed.

This Year is a
"PEACH"
of a time to put up fruit!

Every member of your family loves juicy, rich flavored canned peaches, pears, plums, other fruits.

And, home canned fruits taste "extra special" particularly when store-bought canned goods are 'way up in ration points.

This year, with peaches and other fruits in plentiful supply, buy them by the lug box and stock up your pantry shelves with home canned fruits. You'll save money...help conserve the nation's food supply and stretch ration points.
